Decline in Vandalism at Torrance Schools Noted

Vandalism in the Torrance schools has shown a marked decrease during the past year, according to school officials. The credit for lowering this cost from over $25,000 to less than $5,000, according to Superintendent J. H. Hull, should go to the parents, students, principals and teachers. "When all of these people feel they belong to the schools and the schools belong to them, damage to property is low," he stated.
